

WINTERSESSION 2010 AND RELATED REGISTRATION INFORMATION

As you may be aware, just two courses will be offered on campus during wintersession: German 101 and Russian 101. There are also seven wintersession trips off-campus, many of which required applications prior to this semester. The wintersession schedule and additional information can be viewed at:

<http://www.wellesley.edu/Registrar/> under “Registration/Schedules”.

Only those students authorized to return during wintersession will be housed on campus. Students will be permitted to return for wintersession housing only if they meet one of the following eligibility requirements:

- Students in programs that require their presence on campus. (e.g., Madeline Albright Institute, winter theatre, international students and winter season varsity athletic teams);
- Students whose current academic work requires their presence on campus. (e.g., students enrolled in on-campus Winter Session classes, approved thesis students); or
- Student employees in positions deemed essential to conducting the business of the college.

Students wanting to take courses at MIT during wintersession must already be in one of the three authorized groups detailed above or secure off-campus housing. Also, not all MIT courses are approved for credit at Wellesley. Students must have their course pre-approved through the Registrar’s Office if they wish to earn academic credit. More information about MIT wintersession registration and previously approved courses can be found here.

Wellesley College students will be able to register online for wintersession using Banner Self-Service during the time blocks below. You must choose the Wintersession 2010 term:
