MAKERS: Women in Business, directed by Jamila Wignot ’00
Collins Cinema
Jump start your Saturday morning with a screening of MAKERS: Women in Business directed by award-winning filmmaker, Jamila Wignot, Class of 2000! Part of the landmark series and online digital initiative, MAKERS, the film chronicles the story of the exceptional women—past and present—who have taken the world of business by storm. As told by women business leaders themselves, the film is a candid exploration of what it takes to make it and a celebration of the extraordinary individuals who over the course of fifty years have proven—be it in the rough and tumble world of Wall Street, in the halls of corporate America, or through the grit and determination of building business empires of their own—that a woman’s place is wherever she believes it to be. Some of the exceptional leaders in business featured include groundbreaking Wall Street pioneer Muriel Siebert; advertising maven Mary Wells Lawrence; and Wellesley’s own, Lulu Chow Wang (Class of ’66); as well as a new generation of industry disrupters like Facebook COO & Lean In author Sheryl Sandberg, and Rent the Runway co-founder and CEO Jennifer Hyman.

The screening will be followed by a discuss with Jamila who will share insights about the process, behind-the-scenes nuggets, and answer any questions from the audience!
