What do the dotted lines mean?

The dotted lines mean the bus stops at the indicated location, but that a precise time for its arrival and departure cannot be given.

Where can I get on and off the bus at Wellesley?

The bus waits near the Chapel and leaves at the departure times listed.

The bus then stops briefly to pick-up students waiting at the Campus Center/Alumnae Hall.

On its return to campus, the bus drops off students at the Campus Center/Alumnae Hall and then proceeds to the Chapel.

THE ROUTE

Here is a Map of the Exchange Bus Route on MIT’s Campus:
The general route of the bus is:

PICTURES OF THE STOPS

In order of the route:

Building N52 on Massachusetts Ave

Although the name of this stop is “Building N52,” you board and depart the bus across the street from Building N52. Look for a stone building called Random Hall and a Sunoco gas station, which is directly opposite Building N52. Building N52 has large red “MIT Museum” lettering and a red banner on it. The Cambridge Bicycle Shop is near Building N52. This stop is about a 5-minute walk from the MBTA Central T stop. Many students think this a dangerous area at night and would recommend walking to the 77 Mass Ave stop.
As you wait for the bus, you will be looking at Building N52, the MIT Museum, which looks like this:

Building 34 on Vassar Street

This stop is next to the famous Stata Center and directly opposite the Building 44 stop. Some students feel uncomfortable at this stop at night. Vassar street can be quite quiet. It may be safer just to walk over to the 77 Mass Ave stop at night, if you have a long time to wait.

Kendall on Main Street

The bus stops in front of Building E38, which houses the MIT Press Bookstore. The stop is right next to the MBTA Inbound Kendall T stop. The MIT Coop is across the street from this bus stop. Most students feel that this is a safer place to wait at night than the Building E40 stop is because it is in a busier area. However, Main Street is much busier during the day than it is at night.

Building E40 on Amherst Street

Building E40 is also called the Muckley Building. This stop is opposite Building E51, the Tang Center for Management Education. Most students feel uncomfortable at this stop at night since it is in a poorly lit area. You should be able to wait inside the building, if you’re there for awhile – just remember that the bus will drive by if the driver can’t see you outside!
Building 44 on Vassar Street

Building 44 has a sign with a big red “J” on it that says “Cyclotron.” This stop is directly opposite the Building 34 stop. Some students feel uncomfortable at this stop at night. Vassar street can be quite quiet. It may be safer just to walk over to the 77 Mass Ave stop at night, if you have a long time to wait.

77 Mass Ave

This stop is right at the MBTA bus stop. You can wait in the covered glass bus stop there. It is in between the Student Center and Bexley Hall. The stop is directly opposite Building 7, the big white domed building with the huge stairway. This is the most reliable stop because it is assigned a specific time on the schedule, which the drivers will wait till to leave. It is also the single stop that everyone agrees is safe at night, as it is well-lit and near the student center and several dorms.

Commonwealth Avenue

This stop is at the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Commonwealth Avenue on the side of Mass Ave that the Eliot Hotel is on. You would wait behind the white taxi shown in the picture below. In the picture, the Eliot Hotel is the building on the left. This stop is a one-minute stroll away from the MBTA Hynes T stop, Urban Outfitters, and Virgin.
