

Wellesley-in-Aix
STUDY ABROAD IN FRANCE
2014-15

"This is a phenomenal program. It gave me enough support to immerse myself in French culture without smothering me with too much handholding."

A note from the Director

Bienvenue à Wellesley-in-Aix!

2014-15 will be Wellesley's 34th year in France and we look forward to welcoming you soon to Aix-en-

Provence! We've designed our program to deepen your academic learning through linguistic and cultural immersion in a vibrant, student-friendly city located in one of the most beautiful regions in France.

Aix-en-Provence has over 30,000 students enrolled mainly at Aix-Marseille Université, the largest university in France. The city is large enough to offer a good variety of cultural events and culinary pleasures yet small enough to allow you to quickly feel comfortable and meet people informally. Past students have enjoyed its lovely architecture, colorful outdoor markets and surrounding natural beauty, including Cézanne's beloved Sainte Victoire mountain, a favorite hiking spot!

Wellesley-in-Aix focuses on authentic access to French culture and enthusiastically supports your efforts to achieve fluency in French. Language is the key to integration; the more you communicate in French, the greater your progress will be. Qui ne risque rien n'a rien! Whether conversing with host family members at mealtimes, taking notes in university courses or taking Zumba classes in French, you will acquire new frames of reference, gain a different perspective on issues and learn to express yourself in a variety of contexts and ways that can bring deep pleasure. The ability to step outside one's own culture, understand other viewpoints and communicate in a language other than English are also valuable, career-enhancing skills.

Thanks to its small size and experienced staff, Wellesley-in-Aix can offer individual assistance in the form of academic advising and tutorials; health and safety advice; cultural tips and suggestions on meeting locals, exploring the region, and finding extra-curricular activities. As you will often hear us say in Aix, Profitez-en!

If you have further questions, feel free to contact the Wellesley-in-Aix Office (wia@wellesley.edu).

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Monique Fecteau". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a blue horizontal line underneath it.

Monique Fecteau, PhD
Resident Director, WIA
Senior Adjunct Lecturer of French,
Wellesley College

WIA at a Glance

STUDENTS	25-30 participants, women and men. Full year or single-semester residency. Open to college juniors, seniors and sophomores with a solid foundation in French.
CALENDAR	Full Year: late August - late May Fall Semester: late August - mid January Spring Semester: early January - late May
LOCATION	Aix lies in the heart of Provence, in southern France, a few miles north of Marseille and the Mediterranean.
PARTICIPATING INSTITUTIONS	Aix-Marseille University Sciences Po Aix
HOUSING	Host Families or Shared Apartments
FEES	(2013-14) $28,388 per semester, includes tuition, housing, meals or meal allowance, program excursions and cultural allowance, allowance for round trip airfare to/from France
PRE-REQUISITES	5-6 semesters college French or the equivalent (French 210 or 211 for Wellesley applicants); 3.0 GPA in French courses and overall
APPLICATION DEADLINES	Fall/Full Year: March 15 Spring: September 15
FIELDS OF STUDY	Africana Studies, Anthropology, Art History, Cinema, Comparative Literature, French Language & Literature, Geography, History, International Relations, Linguistics, Mediterranean Studies, Middle Eastern Studies, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Religion, Sociology, Theater, Women & Gender Studies

Aix-en-Provence

Aix is located approximately 30 kilometers north of Marseille and the Mediterranean coast. The region is famous for its Gallo-Roman ruins, picturesque villages and lively markets, abbeys and churches, and its geographical beauty and pleasant climate, making it an ideal location for outdoor activities. Aix lies at the foot of the Montagne Sainte-Victoire immortalized by Paul Cézanne, a native of Aix. The population of Aix is close to 145,000, including about 30,000 students.

Wellesley-in-Aix participants generally appreciate the informal nature and openness of the Provençal people; the relaxed pace of daily life; and opportunities to visit local sites and towns, such as the Palais des Papes in Avignon, the spectacular seaside cliffs between Marseille and Cassis, and the Roman arenas in Arles and Orange. The mild, sunny climate and proximity to Spain, Italy and North Africa also contribute to making southern France and Aix a highly desirable place to live and study.

The Academic Program

Wellesley-in-Aix students register at Aix-Marseille University (AMU) and/or the Institut d'Etudes Politiques (Sciences Po-Aix). Aix-Marseille University recently became the largest university in France and is second only to the University of Paris in the areas of French literature, history, and linguistics. AMU also houses the Center for Mediterranean Studies.

Each student organizes her/his own program of study in consultation with the Resident Director, who assists students in indentifying relevant courses in the Humanities and Social Science divisions of AMU. Students majoring in political science, economics or international relations may enroll in selected classes at Sciences-Po Aix and complete their courseload with AMU courses, or may elect to pursue the "Certificat d'études politiques" (CEP), a year-long program with a set curriculum that culminates in a CEP diploma.

Students typically enroll in four courses per semester and earn four units (16 credit hours) of Wellesley credit.

Depending upon enrollments, WIA may offer enhanced matriculation courses with AMU or Sciences Po professors who hold additional regularly-scheduled sessions for WIA students to provide important background information and methodological support. A WIA tutor is also available to work with individual students or small groups on their French academic writing and presentation skills.

Pre-Departure Advising

The Wellesley College Campus Director and WIA staff in the U.S. provide students with assistance throughout the application process, as well as guidance for obtaining a student visa, making travel arrangements, transferring credit, etc. A number of pre-departure meetings are organized each semester on the Wellesley College campus. Students who cannot attend these are invited to participate in individual info sessions via Skype, phone or in person.

Séjour à Paris

The program begins with a week-long session in Paris which allows students to discover France's political and cultural capital via guided museum visits, lectures and opportunities to become familiar with daily life in France. In recent years, the pre-session in Paris has also included group meals, theater outings, concerts, and information sessions with the Resident Director.

Orientation

Past day trips outside of Paris have included Versailles, Monet's home in Giverny, Reims and Normandy. Students are typically housed in shared rooms in a centrally located residence-hotel. Rooms are equipped with kitchenettes and students receive a stipend to cover food costs and local transportation.

Orientation in Aix

Orientation continues in Aix and focuses on academic aspects and local culture, including information on the French university system and course selection process, a daily class on French academic writing, visits to AMU and Sciences Po and individual advising sessions with the Director. Other activities include a walking tour of Aix, a day trip to Marseille, a market outing followed by a group meal, and a guided visit of a local museum or cultural site.

The Cultural Program

Aix is a city rich in literary, cultural and artistic events, particularly in 2013 with the designation of Marseille-Provence as the Capitale européenne de la culture. Aix's annual summer opera festival attracts distinguished performers and audiences from all over the world. The Grand Théâtre de Provence features opera performances, concerts, and classical and contemporary plays throughout the year, and the Pavillon Noir houses choreographer Anjelin Preljocaj's ballet troupe. The annual Festival Tous Courts competition in December brings together producers and aficionados of short feature films from all over the world.

In addition to its rich cultural and artistic scene, Aix and the surrounding region offer numerous opportunities for outdoor activities, including hiking, rock climbing, and kayaking which can be done individually or through local clubs. WIA students receive a cultural allowance each semester to support participation in cultural activities or memberships in clubs that foster interaction with locals, e.g., sports teams, cooking classes, dance or yoga lessons. Participating in a

"I made a discovery I want to share with my successors: people in Aix are just like us, only a little more formal. So be BOLD! The French are like éclairs. They can be resistant and intimidating on the outside, but they're soft and sweet in the middle."

chorus or musical group, being part of team, or taking pottery or photography classes are excellent ways to meet locals and improve French fluency while enjoying an activity or learning a new skill.

Once students are acclimated in Aix, they enjoy exploring nearby cities and regions easily accessible by train or bus, such as Marseille, Nice, Lyon, Arles, and Monaco. Each semester, the program organizes a few day trips and other group activities, including trips to the island of Porquerolles, the port town of Cassis, Avignon and les Baux de Provence, the villages of Gordes and Roussillon, Martigues, and hikes up Sainte-Victoire or kayaking in the calanques. One weekend trip per semester is organized in another nearby region, such as Burgundy, Dordogne or Lyon. We also urge students to take advantage of trips organized by AMU, Sciences Po or other student groups and clubs.

In recent years, WIA has secured volunteer positions and internships with Aix's annual short-film festival, the Festival Tous Courts. WIA staff can offer guidance and support to students interested in pursuing independent volunteer and internship opportunities, such as assisting in English classes at local schools.

Housing

All housing is organized and managed by the program, and final placements are confirmed upon students' arrival in France. The majority of recent WIA participants have opted to live in homestays and highly recommend this option, which provides daily interaction and conversation with French hosts.

Students in homestays have their own rooms, wireless access in the home and take their breakfast and evening meals with their hosts. Bus passes are provided to students who live slightly outside the center, and students may be reimbursed for occasional taxis.

A limited number of apartments rented by WIA in or near the center of Aix are also available. These are shared with one other WIA student and consist of a bedroom with twin beds, a living room, a fully-equipped kitchen, and wireless access. Dishes, sheets, and towels are all provided, but students are responsible for cooking meals, doing laundry (in laundromats) and cleaning the apartments which are inspected monthly.

Students who opt to share an apartment are strongly encouraged to sign up with a local association called Bienvenue en famille aux étudiants étrangers (BFEE) that matches them with host families who regularly invite them to dinner or to participate in an activity.

All students receive a monthly allowance for lunches. Students living in apartments receive additional funds for other meals, cleaning supplies, laundry costs, etc. The program also provides bus passes to students who must travel to Marseille weekly for certain classes.

Student Services

Centre Wellesley

The WIA program is headquartered in a converted private home located in a residential area about a 10-minute walk from the center. The WIA center is close to the Pavillon Vendôme and its lovely park and the Ecole Supérieure d'Art. The center is open during regular business hours, and on-site staff are available daily.

The center includes a small library and large common room, a computer room with printers, a fully-equipped kitchen and an outdoor terrace for student use. Free wireless access is available at the center, and students are encouraged to bring their laptops.

Students may drop by at their convenience on weekdays to pick up mail and packages, eat lunch or use the library in between university classes, use the computers, work with the program tutor and speak with the staff. Occasional lectures and group meetings are held in the common room.

On-Site Staff

The Wellesley-in-Aix staff includes a full-time permanent resident director and program assistant who are available to assist students with all academic and administrative matters. The resident director is the primary emergency contact person on site, handles all academic issues and acts as the liaison between the program and university partners in Aix as well, as with the French Department and Office of International Studies at Wellesley.

"The Wellesley-in-Aix program provided an incredible opportunity to engage with the world through language and inter-cultural understanding. My language abilities increased exponentially and I was able to live, study, and work in a new community and immerse myself in the French language and the beauty of Provence. Ultimately my language improved enough to work with the French Red Cross which challenged me to learn in an entirely new way. I would strongly encourage any language learners to take the next step and study abroad with Wellesley-in-Aix."

Who Should Apply?

Students from all majors are welcome. While a number of our students are French majors, this is not a requirement: the majority of Wellesley-in-Aixers come from a broad range of academic disciplines, including anthropology, art history, international relations, language studies, linguistics, political sciences, psychology, and sociology. Numerous courses in Aix may count toward these majors.

Admission

Recent participants have included students from Amherst, Barnard, Bates, Bowdoin, Brandeis, Brown, Bryn Mawr, Carleton, Colby, Columbia, Cornell, Davidson, Harvard, Haverford, Johns Hopkins, Kenyon, Princeton, Tufts, Vassar, Wesleyan, Williams, and Yale.

Pre-Requisites

The program is open to college sophomores, juniors and seniors with a solid background in French. The pre-requisites are 5-6 semesters of college French, and a 3.0 GPA in French courses and overall.

Application are available at www.wellesley.edu/aix. Deadlines are March 15 for fall/full year and September 30 for spring semester.

Fees & Financial Aid

Participants pay Wellesley College's comprehensive fee ($28,388 per semester in 2013-14). 2014-15 fees will be announced in April 2014.

Health Insurance

Health insurance coverage is required. Participants will be automatically billed for Wellesley College's insurance covering study abroad, but they may waive it and use their own so long as the alternative policy is comparable to the Wellesley coverage and covers medical expenses abroad. Students in Aix are also covered automatically by the college's supplemental emergency medical assistance and evacuation/repatriation insurance.

Payment of Fees

A non-refundable deposit of $500 is due upon acceptance. Students participating in the full year or fall-only programs may use either the semester payment plan or an installment plan. The first semester payment is due on August 1 and the spring semester payment is due on January 2. For more information about the semester payment plan please contact Wellesley Student Financial Services at (781) 283-2456. For information regarding the installment payment plan contact Tuition Management Services at (800)722-4867 or on the web at www.afford.com.

Financial Aid

Wellesley students enrolled in the program are eligible to transfer all of their Wellesley College financial aid, except for work-study funds which are replaced by an optional loan. Students from other institutions should check with their study abroad or financial aid office to determine whether their institutional aid applies. Wellesley-in-Aix has limited scholarship funding available to qualified students from other institutions. Students seeking financial assistance should include a letter of request with their admission application.

Program Fee includes:

Travel Stipend for flight to/from Paris; Transfer between Paris and Aix-en-Provence; Educational and administrative fees; Food and lodging from the departure date to the end of the academic year; Group activities, e.g., excursions, museum visits; Visa Application Fees

Fee does not include:

Vacation Travel; Medical or Dental Insurance; Books & Supplies; Personal Expenses

- Wellesley-in-Aix is located in Aix-en-Provence, a lively, charming city of 145,000 inhabitants located in southern France within easy distance of the Mediterranean coast and France's second largest metropolis, Marseille.
- Wellesley-in-Aix is an immersion program designed for students in the humanities and social sciences with solid French skills who wish to increase their mastery of the language and knowledge of French culture via direct enrollment in the French university system and a homestay option.
- WIA students enroll at Aix-Marseille University (AMU), the largest public university in France or at Sciences Po Aix.
- All courses are in French, and students are expected to communicate in French with WIA staff and other participants.

“I learned in Aix that speaking French -- what I did back home -- is not the same thing as being a speaker of French, being able to interact fully and deeply with people whose only language is French. It was a revelation. I will never think of ‘other’ and ‘otherness’ in the same way.”

Wellesley-in-Aix
Wellesley College
106 Central Street
Wellesley, MA 02481
Tel: 781-283-2320
E-mail: wia@wellesley.edu
www.wellesley.edu/aix