DAVIS MUSEUM AT WELLESLEY COLLEGE ANNOUNCES YU-WEN WU AS THE RECIPIENT OF THE INAUGURAL PRILLA SMITH BRACKETT AWARD

WELLESLEY, Mass. – The Davis Museum at Wellesley College has announced Yu-Wen Wu as the winner of the inaugural Prilla Smith Brackett Award. Wu will receive $15,000 to support her art practice, which focuses on stories about human migration. She will also be featured in an online exhibition available through the Davis Museum website. The biennial Prilla Smith Brackett Award honors an outstanding female-identified visual artist based in the Greater Boston area and recognizes her exceptional contributions to the field and region.

“Wu’s artwork tells powerful stories of human migration, of losses and gains, through a trans-medial practice that ranges from drawing, to community-based installation, to video,” says Lisa Fischman, the Ruth Gordon Shapiro ’37 Director of the Davis Museum. “Projects such as Leavings/Belongings are especially important now as immigration continues to be one of today’s most pressing political, social, and economic topics.”

The Davis Museum will host a celebratory reception and presentation of the artist’s work on September 23rd at 6 p.m. Yu-Wen Wu, along with the award sponsor, Prilla Smith Brackett and the award jurors will be in attendance to discuss the artist’s work. The event is free and open to the public.

“I am honored and thrilled to receive the Prilla Smith Brackett inaugural Award,” said Yu-Wen Wu. “This recognition is an opportunity for me to expand ongoing inquiries into issues I care about, such as migration and the environment. Projects like Leavings/Belongings now have the support to develop performative elements and travel across the country. I am excited to realize new work.”

About the Artist
Yu-Wen Wu’s (b. Taipei, Taiwan) subjectivity as an immigrant is central to her artwork. Positioned at the crossroads of art, science, politics, and cultural issues, her projects include large-scale drawings, site-specific video installations, community engaged projects, and public art. Her most recent collaborative project, Leavings/Belongings (2016 to current) gives voice to individual immigrants and refugees who make it to the United States. The artwork brings small groups of immigrants together to make symbolic bundles, which call attention to material objects left behind. Her website can be found at: www.yuwenwu.com.
