Introduction

This Handbook

We have compiled this handbook to provide answers to some frequently asked questions about service on standing committees of Academic Council and to provide some basic information about each Council committee. We hope that faculty members will find this handbook to be a useful reference, particularly as they think about what committees they might like to serve on now and in the future.

Faculty Governance at the College

Faculty, staff, and students play an important role in the governance of the College. Faculty governance occurs primarily through Academic Council and its numerous standing committees. Each committee has a specific area of responsibility, such as admissions, budget, curriculum, or faculty appointments. While faculty generally constitute the majority of members on each committee, most committees also include one or more senior administrators, such as the President or Provost and Dean of the College, and some committees include other relevant administrators and student members as well. All tenured or tenure-track faculty members are eligible to serve on a committee of Academic Council, except those who are in their first year of service at the College or on leave. FIP faculty (faculty on term appointment, ISLs, and PERA faculty) also are eligible once they have a multiyear contract. The vast majority of eligible tenured or tenure track faculty members do serve on a committee on a regular basis, as do a substantial number of FIP faculty.

Committee Appointment Procedures

Members of standing committees of Academic Council are either elected or appointed, as specified in College legislation (Book I, Article V). With the assistance of the Dean's Office, the Agenda Committee runs elections each spring to fill any coming vacancies on those Council committees whose members are elected. After elections are concluded, the Agenda Committee appoints faculty members to the rest of the committees.

Each spring, the Agenda Committee circulates a committee preference form to all faculty members, in order to allow faculty members to express their preferences to serve or not serve on particular committees. The Agenda Committee attempts to honor these preferences in making appointments, not placing faculty members on those committees for which they have expressed a dispreference and striving to fill committee vacancies with faculty members who have expressed a preference for that particular committee when possible. College legislation often specifies aspects of the committee's membership, such as the number of tenured vs. untenured members or the number of representatives of each divisional group (Group A, B, and C), and the Agenda Committee is also mindful of bringing balance to each committee's membership along a number of other dimensions.

Faculty members are generally appointed to three-year terms on Council committees, although faculty members are also appointed to one-year terms in order to replace faculty members going on leave. Faculty members are not eligible to serve on Council committees if they will be on leave in either semester of the next academic year. For any members whose service on a committee is interrupted by a leave, the standard practice is to end the faculty member's service on the committee early if he or she has already served two years of a three-year term and to extend the faculty member's term if he or she has only served one year of the term (so the faculty member will return for two more years of service following the leave).

Given the current size of the faculty and the number of positions for faculty members on Council committees (as specified in legislation), there are not enough positions for every eligible member of the faculty to serve on a Council committee every year. In making appointments, the Agenda Committee has traditionally followed a "junior-first" policy, making it a priority to place all eligible tenure-track faculty members on committees. The purpose of the policy is to provide tenure-track members with an opportunity to become more integrated into the wider College community early in their career and to have a proven record of service to the College at the time when they are evaluated for reappointment and promotion. Other faculty members should not interpret a brief interruption in their service on Council committees as representing any lack of confidence among the members of the Agenda Committee in their ability to serve the College with distinction. In fact, in spring 2011 the Agenda Committee, after consultation with Academic Council, adopted a goal of not appointing faculty to committees the year following a full term on an Academic Council committee. This will be interpreted flexibly, depending on the needs of particular committees.

The committee membership listed on the following pages does not include the Black Task Force representative. The Black Task Force may add one position to each of the standing committees of Council. See Articles of Government (Book I, Article V, Section 1M) for further details.

If you have any other questions about service on committees of Academic Council, we encourage you to direct them to the Chair of the Agenda Committee.

The standing committees of Academic Council make many important contributions to the life of the College. We thank you in advance for your important work on these committees.

Trustee Committees

The following committees of the Board of Trustees include faculty members. Below is the description of each committee as it appears in Articles of Government (Book I, Article VI).

Committee on Landscape and Buildings

The Committee on Landscape and Buildings shall advise the Trustees in the future planning and care of the buildings and grounds of the College. It shall see that the buildings and grounds are maintained in good condition and shall make recommendations to the Trustees with respect to major questions relating to landscaping and new buildings. The Committee shall also have the responsibility, which may be delegated, of approving works of art and other gifts of tangible personal property offered to the College, and shall consider such matters as the placing of tablets to commemorate donors.

Finance Committee

The Finance Committee shall advise the Trustees with respect to financial matters, including appropriations, endowment spending policies, compensation, pensions and insurance, and all other financial affairs except those assigned to others by the College bylaws or the Trustees, shall make recommendations to the Trustees with respect to the annual and capital budgets and major changes in salary and wages and compensation policies.

Investment Committee

Subject to the control and direction of the Trustees, the Investment Committee, with the assistance of the Vice President for Finance and Treasurer and the Chief Investment Officer, shall be responsible for the investment of the endowment, trust funds and other assets and investments of the College, and for monitoring and recommending to the Trustees the level and issuance of debt to support capital projects. Some subcommittees of the Investment Committee (such as the Proxy Voting Subcommittee) also have faculty and student members.

Committee on Student Life

The Committee on Student Life shall monitor and make recommendations to the Trustees regarding the quality of student life on the Wellesley College campus.

Trustee-Faculty Committee on Academic Affairs

The Trustee-Faculty Committee on Academic Affairs shall focus on general issues of academic policy, including curriculum and faculty personnel matters.

Committee on Admissions and Financial Aid

The Committee on Admissions and Financial Aid focuses on strategic planning issues regarding admissions and financial aid. Ordinarily, the faculty member is the Chair of the Board of Admission.

Wellesley Development and Outreach Council

The Wellesley Development and Outreach Council is an advisory council to the Board of Trustees, the President and the office for Resources and Public Affairs. The Council works to ensure effective fund-raising and outreach to alumnae, parents, friends of the College, and to the public.
