Visiting Lecturers

A visiting faculty member will have the title of Visiting Lecturer (see Articles of Government, Book I, Article IX, Section 7C, Titles). A full-time visiting lecturer will teach five courses; a visiting lecturer's primary responsibility is teaching. If departmental/program staffing needs warrant, a visiting lecturer may be reappointed for up to three additional years. These initial reappointments are made by recommendation of the departmental Reappointments and Promotions (R&P) committee and with the approval of the Provost/Dean of the College. At least one class visit will be required for each reappointment term. The primary criterion for appointment renewal is quality of teaching. Other criteria (professional development, departmental/college service) may also be considered. Normally, visiting lecturers will be employed at the College for no more than four years.
